

DORMITORY TO MARK 20TH ANNIVERSARY

TRIB D NOV 19 1948
BERKELEY, Nov. 19. — Celebrating the 20th anniversary of Bowles Hall, first dormitory to be erected on the Berkeley campus of the University of California, men students will hold open house tomorrow as an added feature of Homecoming Week.

An all-day celebration, including a buffet luncheon at 11 a.m., will bring together alumni, members of families of students living at the hall and friends, George Mack, president of the Bowles group, said. The $350,000 dormitory, gift of Philip E. Bowles, former regent, and Mrs. Bowles opened its doors to men students in January, 1929.

Dedicated to male students with the motto, "Education Through Fellowship," the hall took its place as one of the best "dorms" in the country at time of construction.

During the past two decades, student residents upheld traditions of their hall by ranking high on University scholarship lists and affording leadership in campus activities.

Since erection of Bowles Hall, Stern Hall, a co-ed dormitory, was built by private funds, while Fernwald living halls for women students were installed by the University at the head of Dwight Way.

U.C. Students Give 'All Work, No Play' Tradition Another Beating

TRIB D JAN 18 1958

BERKELEY, Jan. 18.—A Bowles eighth race winner at Tropical Hall tradition at the University of Park. California debunks the old theory that studying for finals is all work and no play.

The 200-odd members of this men's dormitory on the Berkeley campus manage to break up this grinding study routine by a series of zany antics that also proves "vaudeville isn't dead."

Every night during finals, which began Monday, they knock off for coffee hour at 10 p.m. The hour is signified by an ear-splitting blast from a tin bugle—some call it a trumpet—and the boys retire to dress for their acts.

Just who entertains who in this delirious session hasn't been proven, says House President Dave Carlson, but it's a sure bet that everyone gets a laugh.

Carlson, an old hand at these routines, said that it's no surprise to see a house member turn up in anything from an 1890 bathing suit to a barber pole, posted with the "One night last year," he related, "three jokers made a dramatic entrance in Turkish turbans, liberally garnished with white mice. The mice were the off-spring of 'Minnie,' a very prolific female clinical mouse, which turned up at the Hall a few months earlier."

Trash Smoke Damages

Bowles Hall at U.C.

BERKELEY, Oct. 9 —

Smoke from a smoldering trash can caused an estimated $1,500 damage to a room and its furnishings in a University of California's men's dormitory, Bowles Hall, early today.

Occupants of the building were roused by the smoke at 3 a.m. and evacuated the building.

Firemen said a lighted cigaret apparently had been mixed in with trash swept into the can following a party at the hall last night.

Assistant Fire Chief George Stoughton said the trash can may have been placed in the third floor room of Charles F. Smith, 17, of Santa Monica, and Bill J. Williams, 18, both freshmen, as a prank.

Neither youth was in the room at the time the smoldering debris was discovered. Smith was on a clean-up detail and Williams was at home.
